CREATIVE ARTS AT QUEEN'S

Performing Arts at Queen's has been ranked in the top 50 in the world by the QS World University Rankings. This ranking is reflective of the unique and stimulating environment offered to creative arts students at the University who enjoy teaching with world-leading academic staff and practitioners in some of the most advanced facilities in Europe including the Sonic Arts Research Centre (SARC), a fully accredited Avid Training Centre for Film, the Brian Friel Theatre and the Queen's Film Theatre.

The School is host to a broad range of student societies and musical ensembles ranging from the Tyrone Guthrie Society, which provides opportunities for students to work with professional directors, through to the Queen's University Big Band and Chamber Choir.

Study Abroad students at Queen's normally take three modules (classes) per semester. Modules are usually worth 20 credits each and students require 60 credits per semester. This equates into 15-18 US credits or 30 ECTS credits. If students require more credit for their semester or year abroad, they can opt to take an additional module.

Student Profile – Isaac Wellish

Isaac Wellish was from Lehigh University, Bethlehem

My experience at Queen's and the SARC was unforgettable. All the faculty was extremely helpful and welcoming. From designing digital music interfaces, to analysing a space's acoustic properties, to crafting and performing my own technologically mediated performance, I left the program with a plethora of music technology tools and knowledge I continue to use frequently. I can't thank the SARC enough for an invaluable experience!

The Sonic Arts Research Centre (SARC)

The Sonic Arts Research Centre (SARC) is an established centre of excellence dedicated to the research of music technology. SARC's centrepiece, the Sonic Laboratory, provides a unique space for cutting-edge initiatives in the creation and delivery of music and audio.

Belfast: the festival city

Belfast is a city of festivals, staging the equivalent of at least one festival for every week in the year. Highlights of the creative calendar include the Cathedral Quarter Arts Festival, the Belfast Film Festival and the Festival of Fools. Many of these festivals run events completely free of charge so students can immerse themselves in the lively cultural scene at no expense.

Titanic Studios and Game of Thrones

Northern Ireland is fast becoming one of the most sought-after filming locations for both film and television productions. Belfast is home to Titanic Studios where Game of Thrones is shot. The studios are set on an 8 acre site five minutes' drive from central Belfast in the historically renowned Titanic Quarter (where the Titanic ship was built) and only a stone's throw away from other filming locations across Northern Ireland including The King's Road, Winterfell, The Wall and Dragonstone. Game of Thrones fans from across the world flock to Northern Ireland to visit the studios and the iconic filming sites throughout the countryside.
