

Exploring Blended/ Distance Learning and New PGT Opportunities

Wednesday 5 June, Old Staff Common Room

Are you interested in developing a new postgraduate taught programme, or changing how you deliver your current programme? This event is an opportunity to discuss the potential for new postgraduate taught programmes and explore different ways of delivering postgraduate education.

Register at: <https://go.qub.ac.uk/5JunePGT>

Programme

10.00 - 11.30

Coffee/Tea on Arrival

Session 1: Blended & Distance Learning with Dr Jen Ross, University of Edinburgh

Dr Jen Ross is a Senior Lecturer in Digital Education and co-director of the Centre for Research in Digital Education at the University of Edinburgh. She will discuss her research in digital education, her work on the 'Manifesto for Teaching Online' project and her personal experience of teaching on distance and blended online programmes.

There will also be an opportunity to explore whether blended or fully distance learning models could help enhance student experience or attract a wider audience in your postgraduate programmes.

11.45 - 13.30

Session 2: Exploring New Postgraduate Opportunities

Professor Jannette Elwood will lead discussions on the potential for new postgraduate programmes.

The session will be followed by lunch and the event will end at 13.30.

Wednesday 5 June
10:00 - 13:30
Old Staff Common Room
(Lunch Provided)

Contact Emma McAllister (e.mcallister@qub.ac.uk)
for more information.

