Vancouver referencing is used in a number of Schools within Queen’s. Vancouver is a numerical style, with references that are identified by using brackets.

These numbers correspond to full citations in the reference list at the end of your work. Please note that footnotes are not typically used within the Vancouver system. Superscript numbers may be used as alternative brackets, however, this isn’t common. And if you cite a piece of work more than once, then the same citation number should be used.

Please refer to the PDF below for more detailed information.
