

Curriculum Development

The Centre for Educational Development provides consultancy/advice, resources and a range of staff development activities for academic areas seeking to enhance their curriculum to reflect institutional, regional, national and international priorities and to be responsive to the many drivers that shape contemporary higher education.

Support is on offer to disciplines under a variety of themes including: active/interactive learning, linking research and teaching, enhancing the student and staff experience of assessment and feedback, supporting educational enhancement.

Schools seeking information on the development of an accessible curriculum should contact Disability Services (disability.office@qub.ac.uk) for support and guidance on good practice.
