

MS53 Megaw Collection

About the collection:

A small collection of publications and papers relating to, and donated by the Megaw family.

The Megaw Reading Room in the Lynn Library was opened in 1952 and created through the generosity of the Megaw family. It was named after Judge Robert Dick Megaw (1867-1947). The room was extended to commemorate Alice K. Megaw, Judge Megaw's daughter. Alice Megaw was appointed Assistant Librarian at Queen's in 1941, Sub-Librarian in 1950 and Deputy Librarian in 1959. She retired in 1961. The extension to the Megaw Reading Room was opened in December 1996. Around this time the Megaw family deposited a number of publications and papers written by members of the family. The papers were held in the Megaw Reading Room until Special Collections moved to the McClay Library in July 2009.

Other notable members of the family include Judge Megaw's brother, Major-General Sir John Megaw (1874-1958) an authority on tropical medicine, Robert Dick Megaw's daughter the Crystallographer Helen Dick Megaw (1907-2002), and his sons the engineer T.M. Megaw (b. 1908) and Sir John Megaw (1909–1997) a Lord Justice of Appeal.
