

Collaboration in Conflict: Cross-Community Engagement in Divided Societies Rising Star Engagement Award

Summary

This project used a participatory research approach to engage both emerging scholars and community partners in identifying theoretical frameworks and practical methodologies to support the cultivation of meaningful knowledge exchange. The programme focused specifically on engagement with partners in communities in conflict, identifying the particular challenges, considerations, and opportunities of conducting participatory research in divided societies, with a focus on Northern Ireland and Israel-Palestine.

Outputs

- 1-week knowledge exchange between Israeli and Palestinian youth from the NGO Sadaka Reut and Corrymeela;
- 2 workshops at QUB for PGR students, early career researchers, and community members on collaborative research.

Primary Investigator

Dr Julie Norman with Mr Matt O'Neill, LINCS PhD student, assisting

Institution

Queen's University Belfast

Funding Value

£15,000.00

Dates

1 March 2016 - 1 March 2017

Funder

British Academy,
Rising Star Engagement Award