WELCOME

At the School of Law at Queen's, we are committed to making a positive difference to society, locally, nationally and internationally. Our fantastic students are central to our mission. Their academic accomplishments are matched only by their enthusiasm to get involved in the School, University and local community, organising and make wide-ranging contributions to the vibrant clubs, societies and volunteering available at Queen's.

Students are taught by outstanding academics, whose research is often ground-breaking and at the forefront of their field. My colleagues regularly engage with policy-makers, legislators, third sector organisations, legal practitioners and wider society. Their research has a real world impact and importance, influencing the development of the law and public policy in areas as diverse as human rights, criminal justice, transitional justice, and commercial law.

The School has excellent relationships with employers in the legal profession and beyond. We partner with a wide range of legal sector organisations, who deliver programmes of real-world skills to all students and we are privileged to have a Judge in Residence programme through which a High Court Judge makes regular contributions with students to the wider academic life of the School. Our alumni community are spread across the globe and many are leaders in their chosen careers.

All of this happens in our home at the heart of Queen's beautiful and historic campus: a state-of-the-art Law building with superb teaching facilities, a moot court, study and social spaces.

The School is a member of the leading Russell Group of universities, and has been educating students for over 150 years. We are very proud of this heritage and the contribution we have made and continue to make to society. The School, the University and Belfast are a fantastic place to study Law.

I very much look forward to welcoming you.

OVERVIEW

This topical postgraduate degree programme in Criminology and Criminal Justice is taught by internationally-recognised scholars and researchers who offer students a wide introduction to the study of crime and criminal justice in contemporary society. Staff members have strong links with local criminal justice agencies and community organisations as well as extensive comparative and international expertise, providing for a unique student experience. Key research strengths of the teaching staff lie in the following areas: Community Safety and Crime Prevention; Policing; Prisoner Reintegration; Restorative Justice; Sex Offending; Victimology; Anti-Social Behaviour; Crime and the Life Course. The LLM in Criminology and Criminal Justice is designed to appeal to prospective students with an academic or professional interest in criminology or criminal justice. It enables students to understand the motivations for offending as well as the practical operation of criminal justice and how the state responds to criminality and victimisation. This degree will be of considerable relevance and interest to those who are already employed in criminal justice-related work in fields such as legal practice, government, non-governmental organisations, as well as equipping those who have just completed undergraduate degrees to develop the knowledge and skills to pursue criminal justice-related careers or undertake advanced level study.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

The LLM Criminology and Criminal Justice programme takes an interdisciplinary approach to the study of crime and justice and draws on original staff research. Modules are rooted in relevant theoretical frameworks with a strong criminological focus and provide students with methodological training in addition to supporting the development of critical analysis and other transferable skills. Through the dissertation, students can explore a wide variety of criminological and criminal justice topics. Students are encouraged to develop a critical understanding of the criminal justice process and the practical operation of criminal law in a domestic and comparative context, and are given the opportunity to explore in-depth a particular criminological or criminal justice-related issue through the submission of a dissertation.

Compulsory modules

- Theoretical Criminology
- Criminal Justice Processes
- Dissertation (10,000-15,000 words)
- Students who secure a work placement of at least 8 weeks can complete a Dissertation in Practice Module including 10,000 word Dissertation and 2,000 word reflective journal of the learning experience

Optional modules

- Issues in Policing and Crime Prevention
- Counter-Terrorism in Human Rights
- Youth Justice
- Social Injustice

Compulsory methodology modules

- Approaches to Legal Research
- Criminology Methods 1
- Criminology Methods 2

ASSESSMENT

Assessed coursework and dissertation.

SPECIAL FEATURES

- The LLM in Criminology and Criminal Justice programme is international in focus and taught by leading academics and practitioners in the field. The School of Law houses the Institute of Criminology and Criminal Justice (ICCJ), which has strong connections to civil society organisations, criminal justice bodies and agencies, and international institutions and networks. The ICCJ organises an active, annual speaker and conference series, with talks by academics and practitioners.

- Students undertaking the LLM are encouraged to participate in the British Society of Criminology Regional Group that hosts themed seminars and visiting speakers.
- This LLM provides an excellent grounding for those students who want a career in the police, prison service or in some other area that requires specialist criminal justice knowledge and expertise. For example, many NGOs assist those adults and young people serving custodial sentences, while other NGOs deal with victims' rights and alternatives to custody.
- Some Criminology and Criminal Justice graduates use this degree as a base for further study towards a research degree such as a PhD, which may in turn lead to an academic career. The School of Law has an enviable reputation for placing students on PhD programmes.

OVERVIEW

The protection of human rights at the international and national levels is a relatively new branch of law. There has been a huge growth in the number and variety of human rights standards set out in international treaties, in national constitutions, and in other so-called 'soft law' documents. These standards are not always fully implemented and the mechanisms for trying to get them implemented are sometimes defective.

This LLM provides students with an opportunity to gain an in-depth appreciation of global human rights standards and the interrelationship between international standards and national practice. In particular, we consider ways in which human rights could be protected more effectively so that human beings everywhere can realise their full human dignity. The School has more than 25 years' experience in delivering the LLM in Human Rights Law.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

The programme is delivered through a series of taught modules and culminates in the submission of a dissertation on an original topic. The School constantly reviews and revises what it offers as part of this degree, changing content to reflect the human rights issues that are currently most prominent.

Compulsory modules

- Human Rights in Practice
- International Human Rights Law
- Transitional Justice
- Dissertation (10,000-15,000 words)
- Students who secure a work placement of at least 8 weeks can complete a Dissertation in Practice Module including 10,000 word Dissertation and 2,000 word reflective journal of the learning experience

Optional modules

- Corporate Environmental Law
- Social Injustice
- Business and Human Rights
- Counter-Terrorism and Human Rights
- Comparative Human Rights
- Conflict Mediation
- Climate, Justice and Human Rights
- Advanced Issues in Medical Law and Ethics

Compulsory methodology modules

- Approaches to Legal Research
- Theories of Human Rights

Human rights research and teaching has been carried out since 1990. In addition to teaching, there is also a thriving Human Rights Centre at Queen's. The Centre has strong links with civil society organisations, statutory human rights bodies and international human rights institutions and networks, and organises a speaker series and a number of conferences annually. It participates in the Association of Human Rights Institutes and is involved from time to time in the Venice-based Master's in Human Rights and Democratisation. There are extensive links with universities worldwide.

ASSESSMENT

Assessed coursework and dissertation.

SPECIAL FEATURES

- The School can co-ordinate field visits to institutions dedicated to human rights issues in Belfast, e.g. NI Human Rights Commission and the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland.
- The School has strong contacts with local NGOs and other human rights institutions and can assist students with internship/voluntary work.

- Graduates have found jobs in the UN, the EU and the Council of Europe, as well as statutory bodies and a wide range of international and national NGOs. Others have found the LLM to constitute an extremely valuable addition to their work as legal professionals. Furthermore, this Master's provides an excellent base for further study towards a research degree such as a PhD, which in turn may lead on to an academic career.

OVERVIEW

This innovative and employment-focused programme draws on the School of Law's substantial experience in technology, e-governance and innovation, in terms of law's role in regulating technology and technology's role in transforming governance and legal practice. The programme combines advanced teaching in law and technology with a problem-solving ethos that addresses the key questions facing law and technology today. The programme introduces students both to the legal regulation of technology and to the growing impact of technological change on legal practice.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

The programme is delivered through a series of taught modules and culminates in the submission of a dissertation on an original topic. The programme aims to prepare graduates for work in global business and legal practice through its focus on client-facing problem-solving, on employability and on practical skills.

Compulsory modules

- Law and the Challenges of Technology
- Regulating Innovation
- Law and Technology: project based learning*
- Dissertation (10,000-15,000 words)

CAREERS / FURTHER STUDY

This employer focused programme places employability skills at the core of the student experience (including problem based learning and leadership modules), introducing students to the interplay of and interfaces between law and technology.

SPECIAL FEATURES

This programme will equip students with a thorough understanding of key questions regarding the regulation and governance of technologies, set in the context of computational, leadership, and project management skills.

Students will possess a deep appreciation of matters in the regulation of technology, borne from both classroom and project based experience. Students will develop a sophisticated sense of how technology interacts with law, but also a sense of how law and technology are operationalised in legal practice.

“This innovative programme is designed to prepare you for a career on the interface of legal practice and technology. With employability embedded in the curriculum, graduates will be familiar both with the legal regulation of technology and with technology's effects on the practice of law.”

Dr. Ciarán O'Kelly,
Programme Co-ordinator

OVERVIEW

The MLaw is designed for UK non-law graduates, and for law and non-law graduates from other countries who wish to acquire a thorough grounding in UK law. The specially devised curriculum builds on the fact that students have already benefited from a university level education by enabling them to acquire a qualifying law degree in 2 years, rather than the 3 years it would normally take to obtain an LLB. The degree offers the highest quality of teaching, delivered through weekly seminars.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

The MLaw is offered on a modular basis. To complete the degree a total of 300 CATS points must be obtained. Twelve modules (20 CATS each) must be taken and a dissertation (60 CATS) must be completed. The structure is as follows:

Year 1

- Constitutional Law in Context
- Criminal Law
- European Constitutional Law
- European Internal Market Law
- Legal Methods and Skills
- Rights and Accountability

Dissertation

- Commenced over the summer between Years 1 and 2 and submitted at end of Year 2

Year 2

- Company Law and Corporate Governance
- Contract Law
- Equity
- Evidence
- Land Law
- Torts

ASSESSMENT

Primarily assessed by coursework (eg: assignments, take-home exams, MCQs and presentations). In addition, students must also complete a 10,000-15,000 word dissertation, supervised by a member of academic staff with a research interest in the chosen topic.

SPECIAL FEATURES

- The MLaw is recognised by the Law Society and the Bar Council as a qualifying Law degree for practice in Northern Ireland, England and Wales. Students hoping to practice in another jurisdiction should contact that jurisdiction's regulatory body.

- This Master's programme is particularly attractive for those who wish to enter the legal profession, for whom it is an alternative to a graduate level CPE/GDL programme. By spreading study over 2 years of intensive postgraduate-level work, students gain a greater depth of understanding than is possible in one-year CPE programmes.

FUNDING AND SCHOLARSHIPS

The School of Law welcomes applications both from students in receipt of a scholarship and from those who wish to self-fund.

Each year a number of scholarships are normally funded by Northern Ireland's Department for the Economy (DfE), and by both the Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) and Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) through Queen's membership in consortia with other leading UK universities.

The deadline for applications for these scholarships is usually in the January before September intake. In the Autumn of each year, both the School of Law and the wider University host workshops designed to assist candidates in preparing quality scholarship applications.

OVERVIEW

The School of Law at Queen's has a long and distinguished record of achievement in both education and research. Widely seen as one of the leading centres of legal research in the UK, our expertise ranges across both doctrinal and socio-legal work, and includes fields stretching from governance, property law and intellectual property, to human rights, European law, and criminology and criminal justice.

Graduate studies, including postgraduate research, are at the forefront of Queen's vision. The £20million investment in a new School of Law building has created excellent facilities for postgraduate researchers, with access to Queen's Graduate School just minutes away.

PROGRAMME STRUCTURE

A PhD is awarded for original research in a topic chosen by the student. PhD studies may be undertaken on a full (3 years) or part-time (6 years) basis. Research students are appointed a primary and secondary supervisor who will guide them through their research. This independent research is complemented by programmes of training, provided both by the School of Law and by Queen's Graduate School, which is housed in a beautiful converted building just minutes from the entrance to the new School of Law building.

WHY QUEEN'S?

- The School is home to internationally renowned research centres, including in human rights. Our faculty also play important roles in interdisciplinary University initiatives, such as the Senator George J. Mitchell Institute for Global Peace, Security and Justice.
- The School has an international community of postgraduate researchers. Topics studied by students are also truly international in scope and reflect a broad range of interests.
- The School offers bespoke training, complementing the Researcher Development Programme offered by Queen's Graduate School.
- The School offers funding to support fieldwork and attendance at summer schools and conferences.
- The School has a long and distinguished pedigree of placing PhD students into academic careers in all parts of the globe. Recent PhD graduates have taken up academic appointments in continental Europe, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, the United States and Canada, as well as in the UK and Ireland.

“My doctoral experience so far has been a brilliant one. I have met people from diverse backgrounds who have been kind and friendly, offering a helping hand when needed.”

ABOUT BELFAST AND NORTHERN IRELAND

Belfast is a fun city on the current 'must-see' destination lists. It is also the safest region in the UK (UK British Crime Surveys 2018-19). Awash with enthusiasm, culture and that famous Irish friendliness, students can also explore:

- Beautiful scenery and outdoor adventures such as the Giant's Causeway or hiking in the Mourne Mountains.
- Titanic Belfast is the World's Best Visitor Attraction (World Travel Awards 2016).
- Game of Thrones' film location and activity tours.
- Great entertainment and nights out; a buzzing arts and social scene from festivals, theatre and international events to historic pubs, stylish bars and brilliant shopping.
- Northern Ireland: happiest place in the UK (Lloyds Bank Happiness Index 2020). Belfast has the lowest student rent in the UK (NatWest Student Living Index 2020).
- The rest of the UK, Ireland and Europe with accessible airport and transport links to most major cities.

ABOUT QUEEN'S

LAW SCHOOL

Opened in September 2016, Queen's has spent £20million on providing a state-of-the-art facility for its law students.

The building is located in the heart of the campus next door to the Graduate School and the Peter Froggatt Teaching Centre. The building is not designed to be just a place where a law degree is earned. It has been conceived as a flexible space, shared between staff and students at all levels from Undergraduate to Master's and PhD.

Staff and students are able to meet both formally and informally to share and exchange ideas and knowledge. The School of Law building offers genuine world-class facilities for learning and research, including a fully featured Moot Court room and One Button Studio. The One Button Studio is a high-spec recording studio that gives students the facility to record, review, edit and critically analyse their own presence on camera, and to receive feedback from peers and lecturers.

RESEARCH AND TEACHING EXCELLENCE

Our teaching quality is recognised as being of the highest standard. Queen's students are taught by academics who are informed by the latest discoveries in their fields. The University has won five Queen's Anniversary Prizes for Further and Higher Education, for world-class achievement in green chemistry, environmental research, palaeoecology, law and for Northern Ireland's Comprehensive Cancer Services (CCS) programme.

The latest UK Research Excellence Framework 2014 revealed that all academic areas at Queen's have research assessed as 'world-leading', and the University's research strengths are reflected in the quality of our teaching.

ONE OF THE BEST UNIVERSITIES IN THE WORLD

Law at Queen's has been ranked in the top 150 in the world confirming our position as a leading research intensive University.

Our dynamic curriculum is attuned to the needs of students and employers and underpins our place in the top 20 for graduate employment in the UK.

WORLD-CLASS CAMPUS

Queen's has one of the most modern campuses in the UK, including the award winning McClay Library, one of the finest libraries in the world and home to 1.2 million volumes and 2,000 reader places. Other highlights include our new-look Students' Union, the state-of-the-art Physical Education Centre – used as a training camp for the 2012 Olympics. Queen's Elms Student Village or the city centre accommodation Elms BT1 and Elms BT2 are located within easy walking distance of the University.

“The One Button Studio is a fantastic addition to our wonderful law school building. It reflects the genius and innovation of our staff, and their commitment to the highest-quality skills-based education; and it is opening up a huge range of feedback and collaboration possibilities for our students.”

Professor Robin Hickey

OTHER OPPORTUNITIES

The School's Human Rights Centre offers students a unique opportunity to engage with NGOs and Human Rights agencies and institutions across the globe. The School has a vibrant postgraduate community with a student led research network.

A GLOBAL REACH

Legal studies at Queen's have national as well as international dimensions. Beyond the UK and Ireland, we have active relationships and study partnerships with many leading Law Schools overseas, in Australia, Canada, China, France, Spain, South Africa, India, Latin America and the United States.

Through these connections high-achieving students have opportunities to study abroad for a semester or even longer, depending on their particular study pathway. Our alumni have gone onto successful jobs across the UK, Ireland, and internationally, including North America, South East Asia and continental Europe.

TRAVELLING TO BELFAST

By air

Most major UK cities are within an hour's flying time from Belfast's two airports. Competition between budget airlines has been responsible in recent years for a dramatic reduction in fares. There are dozens of flights a day to and from London and other destinations in Great Britain and beyond -at student friendly prices.

By sea

Fast ferry services from Belfast make multiple daily crossings to ports in Scotland and England.

A RUSSELL GROUP UNIVERSITY

As a member of the Russell Group, we are one of the UK's 24 leading universities, providing our students with a world-class education underpinned by world-class research. Queen's researchers work closely with more than 250 universities around the world.
