x = independently organized TED event

Queen's University Belfast is hosting an independently organised TEDx event in June 2020 and we would love to have speakers and performers from our students. This as a group or Club/Society.

DO YOU HAVE AN IDEA OR PERFORMANCE WORTH SHARING?

Can you present your excellent well-formed idea worth spreading or perform a masterpiece in under 18 minutes?

We're looking for new and surprising ideas and inventions that no one has seen or heard of, basic ideas with compelling new arguments that challenge our perspectives or performances that will entertain and educate our audience.

Please send completed applications to TEDx@qub.ac.uk
by Friday 31st January 2020

These should include:

- Your full name(s), student number(s), course details, contact details
- The title/theme of your idea or performance worth sharing
- A summary of your talk or performance on ONE slide
- Estimated duration of your TEDx talk or performance (max. 18mins)
- A 60-second video summarising your idea or sampling your performance

This should be sent via www.wetransfer.com if it is too large to attach

Speakers will be required to:

- Write an outline and/or script with slides if applicable
- Be contactable before the event and have occasional check-ins with the organisational team
- Rehearse their talk in advance and attend at least one fully rehearsal
- Take part in coaching sessions for their presentations

All talk ideas will be full researched to ensure they comply with TEDx content guidelines. These include:

- No selling from the stage
- No political agendas
- No religious proselytising (including new age beliefs)
- Only good science
