PROMOTING HEALTH AND WELLBEING: THE ROLE OF SCHOOLS

The Centre for Effective Education and the UKCRC Centre of Excellence for Public Health Northern Ireland would like to invite you to this event that showcases the work of both centres and outlines plans to take forward a joint programme of research on public health and schooling.

This will be of interest to people who want to learn more about the role schools have to play in promoting the health and wellbeing of children. Short presentations will showcase some of the research currently being undertaken in this area by teams from the Centre for Effective Education and the Centre for Public Health at Queen's and also outline a future programme of work.

The Centre for Effective Education (CEE) has considerable expertise in running randomised trials and is committed to ensuring that educational programmes and interventions are as effective as possible in helping to improve the lives of all children and young people.

The Centre for Public Health (CPH) aims to "advance the health of the public at a regional, national and international level, by increasing knowledge and influencing clinical and public health practice and policy".
