1. INTRODUCTION

This Information Booklet, which is available online at the website of the Institute of Professional Legal Studies (IPLS) explains the application and admissions process for the Bar and Solicitor course at IPLS.

If you have any problems, or there is anything you do not understand, please contact IPLS.

IPLS offers two courses, with 120 places for those wishing to qualify as solicitors in Northern Ireland and 20 places for those wishing to qualify as barristers.

Before deciding which branch of the profession you wish to join you should do as much as you can to find out about the work of solicitors and barristers. Speak to as many members of the profession as you can about the nature of their work and your choice of career. Only a small proportion of a lawyer's time is spent in court. Behind the scenes there are long hours of research in the library, of reading and re-reading decisions and papers, and of drafting documents. A summer job in a solicitor's office is a good way of gaining a feel for the work. Visit the courts. Most are open to the public. Try to understand the distinctions between the two branches of the profession for although they work closely with each other they fulfil different functions. Put briefly, solicitors work from their offices meeting clients directly and advising them. They have rights of appearance in court but generally the work is more office based. Some solicitors are not involved in any court work. Most barristers work from a library located beside the Royal Courts of Justice in Belfast which they share with all the other barristers. Cases are referred to barristers by solicitors, not usually directly by the public. Barristers are generally more closely associated with court work and with researching opinions on legal problems.

2. QUALIFYING AS A BARRISTER

Currently, Bar trainees attend the course at IPLS full-time for one year from the end of August to the end of June (including work-experience and job-shadowing periods).

Bar trainees may be offered the possibility of taking the course over a two-year period. More information about this scheme is available from IPLS.

Admission as a student of the Inn of Court

Bar trainees must be admitted as students of the Inn of Court before commencing their course of study. The last date for application to be admitted to the Inn is 19 August 2019. You cannot be admitted until you have been offered a place at the Institute. Forms are available from the Under-Treasurer (see p.23). You will not be allowed to start the course until the Institute has received proof of your admission. The registration fee for the Inn of Court was £250 in 2017/18.

Work Experience and pupillage

1. The Institute is pleased to co-operate with the Citizens Advice Bureaux in a scheme for work experience for four weeks which will begin immediately following your admission as a student of the Inn of Court. This means that you should not make any other arrangements for the period after 19 August 2019. You will receive full details of the scheme at the beginning of August. This is a compulsory scheme. The Institute will try to allocate you to a Bureau convenient to you, but this is not always possible as not all Bureaux participate in the scheme.
2. The Institute and the Inn of Court of Northern Ireland run a Work Experience programme for intending barristers which must be taken by all Bar trainees commencing vocational training. The programme normally takes place during the week before term begins. You will work-shadow a member of the Bar during that week. It is hoped that during this week you will lay the foundations for the Master-pupil relationship which formally commences on call to the Bar in 2020. Before 13 September all Bar trainees should inform the Institute either (a) of the name of the barrister who has agreed to allow them to work shadow him or her for this week; or (b) that they are unable to find a barrister willing to take them on for this week.

Once again, you should bear in mind that you will therefore be fully involved in work experience for the 5 weeks immediately preceding the beginning of term. Because of this you should not make other arrangements for late August or September. You will be notified of the exact dates of these schemes.

Paid Employment of Bar trainees

Students of the Inn of Court of N Ireland are not permitted to undertake paid employment without the prior permission of the Education Committee of the Inn of Court. Requests for such permission should be addressed to the Under-Treasurer (see p.23).

Pupillage

After graduation from the Institute, Bar trainees undertake a twelve-month pupillage with a Master. Barristers undergoing pupillage cannot accept work on their own account until they have served six months of their pupillage. However, pupil barristers who have completed to the satisfaction of the Education Committee not less than three months pupillage may conduct on behalf of or at the request of their pupil masters cases or parts of cases before a Master of the Supreme Court.

Post-Qualification

It is important that those applying to the Bar are made aware of the costs associated with joining the Bar Library. These include a Call Fee, a Practising Certificate Fee and Bar Library Fees. This may have particular consequences for those who have previously been in full time employment. Further details on fees will be sent to those applying for the Bar course with the admission test results. If you would like more detail before that, please contact IPLS.

3. QUALIFYING AS A SOLICITOR

Solicitor trainees complete a two-year apprenticeship made up as follows:

1. First Monday in September to end of December - pre-course period of in-office training;
2. January to December- attending the Solicitor course full-time at IPLS (although returning to Master's office during vacation periods).
3. January to August - post-course in-office training

On completion of the two-year apprenticeship newly qualified solicitors receive restricted practising certificates. This means that although they are fully qualified they cannot practise on their own account or in partnership for at least two more years.

Finding a Master and Registration with the Law Society

Solicitor applicants must be registered with the Law Society by 19 August.

To register with the Law Society you must have a Master. Finding a Master is often very difficult and in recent years has become the critical factor for those wishing to obtain a place on the Solicitor's course. Although the closing date for registration is not until 19 August you should not wait until the summer before beginning to look for a Master. Neither should you wait until you have been offered a place on the Solicitors course. The Law Society will accept conditional registrations. You do not need to pay your registration fee at this time. Conditional registration costs nothing, so you should register immediately once you have a Master. If you are not offered a place on the Solicitors course your conditional registration will lapse automatically. If your own efforts fail to get you a Master you should ask the Law Society to assist you. The Society keeps a register of solicitors who are prepared to take on apprentices. However the onus is clearly on you to find a Master and to convince that solicitor (or firm) that you will be an asset to their practice.

Obtaining a Master is generally organised by direct contact with a prospective Master. You should supply them with a detailed curriculum vitae. Apprenticeship positions may be advertised on firms' websites, undergraduate notice boards or by the Law Society. You should regularly check the Law Society website and Twitter account (@Law Society NI).

Your apprenticeship should begin on the first Monday in September.

If you are on a waitlist you may be offered a place on a Solicitors course after 19 August 2019. You will only be able to take this place up if you registered with the Law Society by 19 August 2019.

Where an applicant who has been offered a place on the Solicitors course has failed to register with the Law Society on time, his or her offer of a place lapses and the place is offered on to an applicant from the waitlist. Please beware, this deadline is absolute!!! Miss it and you cannot take up your place.

The registration fee with the Law Society for 2017/18 was £187.50.

BECAUSE YOU WILL LOSE A PLACE ON A SOLICITORS COURSE IF YOU HAVE NOT REGISTERED ON TIME, IT IS STRONGLY RECOMMENDED THAT YOU SHOULD PERSONALLY LODGE YOUR PAPERS AT THE OFFICES OF THE LAW SOCIETY RATHER THAN SENDING THEM BY POST OR VIA A THIRD PARTY.

4. SUBMITTING AN APPLICATION FOR ADMISSION

Closing date for submission of application forms — 16 November 2018.

Applications will be submitted on-line via the IPLS website. The deadline for submission is midday on 16 November 2018.

Applications will open at midday on 3 September 2018.

For applications submitted by midday - on 21 October 2018 – the fee is £225.

For applications submitted before midday - on 16 November 2018 – the fee is £310.

APPLICATIONS RECEIVED AFTER THE CLOSING DATE WILL ONLY BE CONSIDERED IN VERY EXCEPTIONAL CIRCUMSTANCES.

Refunds

In the event that, having applied for the test, you fail to sit it, you may apply for a refund of the test fee. Please note however that any application for a refund must be made by 29 March 2019 and will be subject to a non-refundable deposit of £50. However, applicants who sit the Admissions Test and then withdraw will not receive a refund.

General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

Queen's University Belfast ("we", "us" and "our") is committed to protecting your personal data.

Details of the ways in which Queen's University processes personal data can be obtained directly from the University web pages (see <http://www.qub.ac.uk/dataprot/>).

Entry conditions and requirements for admission

All applicants must:

1. Hold a recognised degree in law.

A list of recognised law degrees is set out in Appendix 4.

Please note the section at the beginning of that document, showing the requirements for a recognised law degree. It is important that you read this section carefully.

In particular candidates should note the requirements relating to part time degrees, core subjects and the compensation (or condonation) of core subjects.

Any applicant who is studying for (or has obtained) a degree not included in Appendix 4, or who has not met all the requirements for a recognised law degree, should contact the Institute before 16 November for advice.

Not all law degrees which are recognised in England and Wales are recognised in Northern Ireland.

INTENDING BAR STUDENTS: please note that you must hold a degree of NOT LESS THAN SECOND-CLASS HONOURS STANDARD, UPPER DIVISION (2.1).

All applicants will be required to supply evidence that they have fulfilled all the requirements for a recognised law degree. If you have already graduated you should submit a full transcript when you submit your application form, or as soon as possible thereafter. If you expect to graduate in the summer you should submit a full transcript as soon as possible and no later than 19 August.

2. Sit and pass a competitive written admissions test.

This is held once each year, just before Christmas. In 2018 the Admissions Test will be held on Tuesday 18 December. Applicants who have been unsuccessful and who are re-applying for admission must resit the Admissions Test. For information about the Admissions Test (see p.14).

Applicants with a disability or medical condition

The Institute is committed to developing an inclusive environment for all students and welcome applications from persons with a disability. We encourage you to disclose any disability or medical condition to ensure that appropriate support is arranged for you at the Admissions Test. The support could include altering examination arrangements (scribe/separate room/additional time), accommodation adaptations or improving physical access.

You will be asked about this issue in the application form and it is important that you provide medical or other evidence to IPLS as soon as possible after you have submitted your application form and certainly no later than 16 November. This evidence will be passed to the Disability and Wellbeing Service of Queen's University for advice and in order to identify the appropriate support required by you. You will then be informed of the arrangements that we intend to make. If you are not happy with those arrangements you will need to contact the Institute immediately to request a review of those arrangements. Your case will then be reviewed again by the Disability and Wellbeing Service at Queens and, following, this review, the Admissions Test Committee will decide on the appropriate special facilities to be provided for you. (See the flowchart describing this process at Appendix 2).

If you do not provide the necessary evidence in time, it may not be possible for us to make appropriate arrangements for you. Students of Queen's University are reminded that any existing arrangements for university examinations do not necessarily cover the Admissions Test.

Applicants unable to sit the Admissions Test on Tuesday 18 December

If you are unable to sit the Test on 18 December you must contact the admissions team at IPLS before 16 November so that the Admissions Test Committee can consider your case. Alternative arrangements may be made in a very limited number of circumstances, e.g. applicants attending courses abroad which are still ongoing on the date of the examination.

Sudden illness or accident occurring after 16 November but prior to the Admissions Test

If you suffer from an illness or an accident which might require you to have special facilities at the Admissions Test you should contact the IPLS admissions team as soon as possible. However if you fail to sit the test due to illness or any other reason your application will be rejected.

Please beware – this deadline is absolute. Miss this and you WILL lose your place!

5. SITTING THE ADMISSIONS TEST

Date of Test:	Tuesday 18 December 2018
Full details will be notified to applicants in December
Venue	Queen's University Belfast

Admissions Test

On 18 December 2018 you will be required to sit two examination papers.

In the first paper, which takes place in the morning, you will be provided with text followed by a series of statements. Candidates will be asked to indicate which of the statements are correct. Where an incorrect answer is given marks will be deducted. Candidates are warned that it is possible to receive a mark of zero for a paper.

You should note that the second paper, in addition to a numeracy element, will also have a grammar element. This will be in the form of a piece of prose which will have a number of grammatical mistakes in it. Candidates will be asked to identify those mistakes. Where an incorrect answer is given marks will be deducted.

Full timings will be given to you in December.

Description of Test

1. The basis of the Admissions Test as set out in the Bromley Report on Legal Education in Northern Ireland is as follows:

“We recommend that the questions set should be such as to test a student’s ability to apply his knowledge of law in a practical way. This should reveal: -

- (a) his capacity to elicit relevant facts from a mass of information;
- (b) his ability to handle available material;
- (c) his ability to express himself clearly;
- (d) his common sense;
- (e) his numeracy.”

2. Expansion of skills tested

The skills to be sought in the Admissions Test since 1998 have been redefined:

- (a) Problem resolution - which includes:
 - (i) attention to detail
 - (ii) the capacity to analyse and elicit facts
 - (iii) the capacity to identify problems
 - (iv) the ability to identify goals
 - (v) the ability to apply the law in the context of the problem

- (vi) research ability
- (vii) the ability to follow accurately clear instructions
- (viii) the ability to make sound deductions
- (ix) numeracy

This skill base is essential as it forms the foundations for the work of a lawyer.

- (b) Communication skills - which includes
 - (i) written communication
 - (ii) ability to be clear and concise and logical
 - (c) Organisation skills - to be able to organise own time effectively and prioritise tasks.
3. Simple calculators may be brought into the examination hall. You are strongly advised to bring one with you.
4. The Admissions Test has a pass mark of 40%. This will mean that those applicants who fail to attain this mark will not be admitted to IPLS regardless of their degree classification and, in the case of solicitor applicants, whether they have obtained apprenticeships. Those who pass the Test will be ranked in order of merit based on Test mark and degree weighting.

Three years previous papers are available on the IPLS website: - www.qub.ac.uk/ipls

YOU SHOULD NOT ASSUME THAT THE QUESTION PAPERS WILL FOLLOW THE SAME FORMAT AS IN PREVIOUS YEARS.

6. SELECTION POLICY AND PROCEDURES

Numbers

The Institute of Professional Legal Studies currently admits one hundred and twenty solicitor trainees and twenty Bar trainees each year.

Criteria

Pressure for the places is intense and entry is therefore highly competitive. The academic calibre of applicants is generally extremely high, making the task of selection very onerous. The criteria employed are rigorous, objective, and apply to all applicants.

Repeat applicants

Unsuccessful applicants may re-apply for admission in any subsequent year.

Deferrals

The offer of a place is valid for the year for which it is made. Successful applicants cannot normally opt to take up a place the following year. The Council of Legal Education will only allow deferral in the most exceptional cases. Applicants offered a place for 2019 who do not wish to take it up until 2020 must generally withdraw and re-apply next year, sitting the Admissions Test again and competing on the same basis as other applicants for that year. Success in one year will not guarantee success in another year.

Weighting of marks between Admissions Test and law degree

In the case of those who have passed the Admissions Test, their test mark in the Admissions Test is added to a second mark, representing a weighting for the applicant's law degree - the better the class of degree the higher the weighting. An order of merit is then drawn up based on the aggregated marks. Places are awarded in order of merit. The committee which oversees and checks the drawing up of the order of merit does so in total ignorance of the names of applicants. Applicants are referred to by examination number only.

Admissions Test Weighting

The Test is marked out of 1000 (TM). The final mark (FM) for each applicant is calculated according to the following formula—

TM + Weighting

Class of degree	TM	Weighting
First class honours	TM + 300	= FM
Upper second class honours	TM + 225	= FM
Lower second class honours	TM + 150	= FM
Third class honours	TM + 75	= FM
Pass or general degree	TM + 0	= FM

Drawing up of orders of merit

Applicants whose degree results are not available will be given an FM based upon their Test Mark and a weighting based on a “target” degree classification. This “target” degree classification will be based upon their academic forecast.

The FMs are placed in descending order and three orders of merit are established:

- one for the Bar course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies
- one for the Solicitors course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies

Selection Committees

The Selection Committees of the Council of Legal Education, on which are representatives of both branches of the profession, have discretion to call any candidate for interview before making a final decision on their application.

Bar course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies

1. Places are offered to the top 15 applicants in the Bar order of merit.
2. Generally, five places are reserved until all the degree results are known. This is because first-round offers of places are based on degree forecasts given by academic referees. Some applicants may achieve higher degrees than forecast.
3. Applicants in the next positions (to a figure deemed reasonable by the Selection Committee) are waitlisted.
4. The remaining applicants are not waitlisted and are notified that their application has not been placed on the active waitlist.
5. In the event of the waitlist being exhausted, some of these inactive applications may be reactivated. If so, the waitlist will be extended in strict line with the order of merit and the applicants concerned notified.

Solicitors course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies

1. Places are offered to the top 115 applicants in the Institute Solicitors order of merit.
2. Generally, five places are reserved until all the degree results are known. This is because first-round offers of places are based on degree forecasts given by academic referees. Some applicants may achieve higher degrees than forecast.
3. Applicants in the next positions (to a figure deemed reasonable by the Selection Committee) are waitlisted.

Options and change of options

You may apply for two options or for one option. If applying for more than one option you must indicate your order of preference on your application form. You may alter your application, (a) by changing the order of your options, or (b) by changing the number of options applied for. Any change must be notified to the Institute admissions team in writing or by email. Every attempt will be made to facilitate such changes but there is no guarantee that applicants will be able to change after the offers of places have been made. Any change of options received by the Institute after the orders of merit have been established (15 February 2019) will not be taken into consideration until the beginning of July when degree results start to be published.

Putting a course as your second option will not prejudice your chance of entry to that course or institution if there is no place available for you on your first option course.

There is no provision for transfer between Bar and solicitors courses after commencement of a course or during the apprenticeship/pupillage. Transfer between the two branches of the profession is not possible until after qualification.

References

You will be asked to provide the names, postal and email addresses for three referees, two of whom must be academic referees. The non-academic referee should have known you for over a year and not be a relative. The academic referees must be able to comment on your undergraduate studies.

If you expect to graduate in the summer of 2019, the Institute will write to your academic referees in January asking them to give a forecast of your likely degree classification.

If you are offered a place it will be conditional on receipt of three satisfactory references

Referees' addresses

As the Institute will be writing to your referees it is VITAL that you provide the full postal and email addresses for each referee.

7. RESULTS OF APPLICATIONS – FIRST ROUND

Method of notification

All applicants will be notified by email of the marks you were awarded in the Admissions Test. Please note that as marks are deducted for incorrect answers you may receive a mark of "0". This email will be sent to you in March 2019.

Applicants who have already graduated will be told one of the following:

- (a) You are being offered a place on the Bar/Solicitors course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies;
- (b) You are being waitlisted for a place on the Bar/Solicitors course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies/; or
- (c) You are below the current level of the active waitlist for the Bar course at the Institute of Professional Legal Studies.

Applicants who expect to graduate in summer 2019 will be given a “target” degree based upon their academic forecast and told what their position is with regards to their course options based upon that forecast.

8. RESULTS OF APPLICATIONS – SECOND ROUND

Second-round letters will be emailed in early July 2019 and throughout the summer.

These will be similar to the first-round letters sent to applicants who have already graduated.

Failure to complete degree by 19 August 2019

If you fail part of your final degree examinations in 2018/19, are subject to resit examinations in summer 2019, and will not have a law degree by the closing date for application for admission as a student of the Inn of Court or registration with the Law Society, you will not meet the entry requirements for your professional body and you will not be offered a place on any of the courses.

The conditional offer of a place on any course will not normally be held open beyond the closing date for application for admission as a student of the Inn of Court or registration with the Law Society. Exceptions will only be made where an applicant was prevented from sitting the final degree examinations by illness or similar reason. Evidence will be required from your University that this was accepted by the Board of Examiners.

If you have a difficulty with final examinations, you should contact the Institute admissions team immediately on becoming aware of this difficulty.

Applicants appealing their final degree result

If you intend to appeal to your university for the degree awarded to you to be changed, you should inform the Institute admissions team immediately on starting the appeal procedure as it may affect the offer of a place to you.

Waitlists

No adjustments are made to the waitlists until July 2019, when most of the degree results will be available. As applicants fail to reach their target degree or successful applicants withdraw, places are offered to waitlisted applicants in strict order of merit. This process can continue until after the closing date for registration with the Law Society or application for admission as a student of the Inn of Court. The amount of movement varies considerably from year to year. It is impossible to predict how far the waitlists will move in summer 2019.

9. CONDITIONS TO WHICH AN OFFER OF A PLACE IS SUBJECT

Conditions to which all offers will be subject

All offers of places will be subject to the following conditions:

1. Confirmation from the relevant university of graduation at the required degree classification.
2. Receipt of confirmation from your university that you have met all the entry requirements listed in Appendix 4 (usually in the form of a transcript, see p.26). If a transcript cannot be provided by 31 May you should return an entry requirements form by that date and submit a full transcript as soon as possible thereafter and certainly no later than 19 August 2019.
3. Receipt of three satisfactory references.
4. Receipt of the Declaration of Cautions and Criminal Convictions.
5. Admission as a student of the Inn of Court or registration with the Law Society.

Registration with professional bodies

Solicitor applicants

Solicitor applicants must obtain a Master and be registered with the Law Society by 19 August 2019. Registration is conditional upon obtaining a place on the Solicitors course. In some years applicants who have been offered places on the Solicitors course lose them because they fail to register on time.

Bar applicants

Applicants for the Bar course must apply for admission as students of the Inn of Court of Northern Ireland by 19 August 2019. Bar applicants may not normally apply for admission before they have been offered a place at the Institute.

Declaration

Please note that as well as making a declaration about your criminal record to the two institutions when making your application, you will also be required to declare any criminal record, including “spent” convictions and cautions, and whether or not you are subject to any ongoing criminal investigation or pending criminal proceedings to your professional body. You will also be required to declare any other matter that could adversely affect your reputation as a student or as a solicitor or barrister and this may affect your acceptance by that body. All applicants to be offered a place on a course or waitlisted for a course will be sent a declaration form with their first-round results letters. This form must be returned by 31 May. The Institute admissions team will inform the Law Society and/or Inn of Court (as appropriate) of the contents of your declaration.

Special Core Subject examination in Evidence

If you began your law degree after 1 September 1996 you are required to have studied Evidence and European Law. As some universities do not teach Evidence a special examination is provided. This examination will take place on 2 August 2019. The fee for this examination is £100. You must inform the Institute in writing before 19 July if you intend to sit this examination. The examination fee of £100 will be due at this time. Cheques should be made payable to "Queen's University Belfast". The syllabus and past papers for this examination are available from the Institute free of charge.

Candidates may also have the option of taking an Evidence examination at degree level at another University if that University runs a recognised law degree and agrees to permit this. The examination must have been successfully passed before the date for registration or enrolment with the professional body and a transcript provided as evidence of this.

REGULATIONS FOR PART-TIME ATTENDANCE AT THE BAR COURSE

- (a) Bar students normally take the course in one academic year, commencing end of September and finishing end of June.
- (b) A number of Bar students, not exceeding six in any one academic year, may be permitted to take the course over a period of two academic years (“part-time students”).
- (c) The Director of the Institute shall have absolute discretion in deciding which modules a part-time student takes during the first academic year (“Year One”) of his or her course of study at the Institute.

Part-time students will also be required to complete the full-time periods of work experience described on p.6 of the Information Booklet for Applicants for commencement in September 2019.

The six part-time students will be selected in line with the order of merit for the Bar course.

This option applies only to attendance at the course for intending barristers and not to the course for intending solicitors.

APPENDIX 4

RECOGNISED LAW DEGREES for the purposes of admission to the Institute of Professional Legal Studies of Queen's University Belfast

The degrees appearing on this list are recognised law degrees for the purposes of admission to the Institute of Professional Legal Studies of Queen's University Belfast and qualification for the legal profession in Northern Ireland subject to meeting the following requirements:

- (a)(i) that for candidates commencing their law degree after 1 September 2003 a full-time degree should normally be completed within one year of the normal period for completion of a particular programme and
- (ii) that a part-time degree should normally be completed within two years of the normal period for completion of a particular programme.
- (iii) that for candidates commencing their law degree after 1 September 2009 an external or distance learning degree should normally be completed within six years
- (iv) that for candidates commencing their law degree after 1 September 2009 a "graduate entry" external or distance learning degree should normally be completed in a minimum of two years.

A degree falling outside the periods prescribed at (a) above will only exceptionally be recognised by the Council of Legal Education (NI). Exceptional cases should be referred to the Council of Legal Education, with full supporting evidence, to be considered on their merits.

- (b) that the following subjects (the "core subjects") should be included at degree level:
 - (i) Constitutional Law, Criminal Law, Contract, Tort, Land Law, Equity, Evidence* and European Law.
 - (ii) Candidates who commenced their law degrees before 1 September 1996 may substitute Company Law* in the place of European Law.
 - (iii) For candidates who commenced their law degrees after September 2001 a maximum of two core subjects may be taken outside of the law degree.
- (c) that credit for none of the core subjects listed at (b) above has been obtained through APEL (accreditation for prior experiential learning).
- (d) The compensation (or condonation) of core subjects is not permitted. Candidates who began their law degrees after September 2006 and whose transcripts show that they have not achieved the relevant pass mark in a core subject will be required to take and pass an examination of degree standard in that subject (e.g. take and pass a module offered as part of a recognised law degree); in accordance with (b) (iii) above a maximum of two core subjects may be taken outside the law degree.
- (e) that for candidates who began their law degrees after September 2006 the maximum number of attempts at a core subject examination permitted should normally be three.

Candidates who have had more than three attempts at a core subject examination will only be considered in exceptional circumstances. Exceptional circumstances should be referred to the Council of Legal Education, with full supporting evidence, to be considered on their merits.
- (f) that, in a joint degree, 160 out of 360 credits or equivalent (for three-year degrees) or 160 out of 480 credits of the degree or equivalent (for four-year degrees) must be law subjects.

* The Institute holds a special examination each year for trainees who have not studied Evidence as undergraduates. Details may be obtained from the Institute.

 Subjects covered within vocational programmes will not be accepted as meeting the requirement for a core subject to be covered at degree level.

N.B. Candidates' attention is drawn to the fact that whilst a degree may be recognised for the purposes of admission, if it does not carry a normal degree classification (i.e. first class honours, upper second class honours, lower second class honours, third class honours) it may attract a weighting of "0". However, in the case of senior status or graduate entry degrees, if a candidate can provide a transcript (confirmed by the degree-awarding institution) showing the marks achieved for each subject, the Institute of Professional Legal Studies will assess an equivalent degree classification for the purposes of the selection procedure.

Please note that degrees in Scots Law are not recognised.
